Thinking about the independence debate so far and what you have heard from Alex Salmond and the SNP Government...

How convincing a case, if at all, do you think Alex Salmond and the SNP Government have made for independence?

One of the issues in the debate over whether Scotland should leave the United Kingdom and become an independent country is what currency Scotland would use. The SNP have previously said they would ask the UK to create a 'Sterlingzone' similar to the Eurozone, to allow Scotland to continue to use the pound. However, earlier this week the UK Treasury said it was unlikely that the rest of the UK would agree to set up such a 'Sterlingzone'.

If an Independent Scotland could not use the pound and either had to set up a new currency or join the Euro, would this make you...?
