Both of the main political parties have said they will look at introducing a cap on the total cost of benefits. Labour have said this should include the cost of state pensions, which make up a large part of the welfare budget. The Conservatives have said a cap should not include the state pension.

Do you think a cap on the total cost of benefits should or should not include the state pension?

The cost of pensions SHOULD be included in a cap on the total cost of benefits
The cost of pensions SHOULD NOT be included in a cap on the total cost of benefits
