Currently, the Government has the power to remove British citizenship from people who have dual nationality, or are 'naturalised' Britons - that is, immigrants who have lived in Britain long enough to acquire British nationality. Some people from Britain are fighting with Islamic State/ISIS. Should the Government remove British nationality from those who have dual nationality and/or have been naturalised?

Thinking about how the leaders of Britain's Muslim community have responded to the issue of British citizens going to fight for ISIS, do you think...

Most British Muslim leaders could be doing a lot more than they currently are to persuade British Muslims not to go to Iraq and support ISIS

Until 2011 the government could impose "control orders" on terrorist suspects. These were similar to the "Tpims" that replaced them, but had more extensive powers, including the ability to relocate suspects to a different part of the country, and greater powers to ban internet or phone use and who suspects could communicate with.

Do you believe the government should reintroduce control orders?

This week the government announced that the terrorism threat level in the UK had been increased to "severe".
In the last few weeks have you changed your behaviour at all because of the risk of terrorism (for example, avoiding public transport or busy places)?

Yes, I have changed my behaviour in the last few weeks to reduce my risk of being caught in a terrorist attack
No, I have not made any changes in my behaviour due to the risk of terrorism
No, none of my behaviour puts me in places where I would be at risk from terrorism anyway

During the period between the referendum and Scottish independence there would be a general election in the United Kingdom. If Scotland does vote yes, do you think...

Scotland should elect MPs to Westminster in the 2015 election to serve for the final year before independence

Scotland should not elect MPs to Westminster in the 2015 election if there is only a year before independence

Imagine Scotland votes to become independent and Scottish MPs remain in Parliament in the interim period between the referendum and full independence in 2016. Do you think...

Scottish MPs should just leave once Scotland becomes independent, there is no need for a new election

There should be a fresh general election in 2016 once Scotland has gone

If Scotland votes YES, do you think an independent Scotland should keep the Queen as head of state, or should it have an elected head of state instead?

The government has appointed an independent commission to look at how to increase airport capacity in the South-East. This will not fully report until 2015. Which of the following best reflects your view?

Putting off the decision to 2015 is just dithering, a decision on what to do about airport capacity needs to be taken much sooner	40	38	46	37	42	48	46	34	38	45	32	35	38	36	42	39	37	39	41	40	31	39	38
