Do you think the police should or should not be able to carry out undercover operations - that is, send police officers to infiltrate groups or networks of people that they suspect of criminal activity, using a false identity?

It has recently been reported that following the murder of Stephen Lawrence in 1993 an undercover police officer posed as an anti-racism campaigner in order to gather information that could be used to discredit the family of Stephen Lawrence.

There are currently two inquiries being carried out into the original investigation of Stephen Lawrence's murder, an internal police inquiry and an independent inquiry under a senior QC. Theresa May has asked the existing inquiries to look into the claims that the police spied on the Lawrence family, but some people have suggested there should be a separate public inquiry into these claims

Do you think...
