Do you think the UK government is doing all it reasonably can, doing too much, or not doing enough, to reduce tax dodging by companies?

The UK government is doing as much as it reasonably can	10	17	6	5	9	12	11	9	5	9	8	15	11	9	9	12	12	7	5
The UK government should be doing more	74	70	81	85	80	74	75	73	62	72	80	76	73	74	76	71	70	77	82

Many large companies use loopholes in current tax laws to reduce the amount of tax they have to pay, both in the UK and in poor countries. Thinking about this, which of the following best reflects your view?

As long as they stay within the law it is acceptable for companies to use whatever loopholes they can to reduce the amount of tax they pay	18	25	11	19	15	19	21	14	13	17	18	20	20	14	16	20	20	15	15
Companies should pay their full share of tax, and it is not acceptable for them to use loopholes in the law to avoid paying their share	68	64	77	70	74	68	64	72	60	66	70	72	67	69	67	67	65	69	75

British crown dependencies and overseas territories like Jersey and the British Virgin Islands are ruled by Britain but are self-governing and have their own elected governments. Some of these territories have little or no corporation tax or transparency rules and act like tax havens. Do you think the UK Government does or does not have a responsibility to make these territories be more transparent about who owns and profits from companies registered there?

It does have a responsibility	64	62	71	67	70	62	66	62	57	64	66	65	65	62	56	62	65	66	73

Please think about multinational companies that are either headquartered in the UK, or which have a significant presence here. Do you think such companies should or should not be required to publish information about the size of their profits, where they were made and what taxes they paid in each country where they operate?

Should be required	78	80	82	90	85	79	81	76	62	74	86	85	80	76	77	77	76	81	83
