[The next two questions were asked to a random half of the sample; n=2196]

Imagine that David Cameron manages to sign a good deal in his renegotiations and that he and the leaders of all the main parties recommend that Britain votes to remain in the EU. Most business leaders back Britain staying, and several large employers announce plans to move operations to mainland Europe should Britain vote to leave. The European Union itself makes clear it would like Britain to stay, and there would be no option of the free trade deal if Britain did leave the EU.

How would you then vote on the day of the referendum?

Imagine that David Cameron is unable to secure a good deal in his renegotiations and that many senior political figures back calls for Britain to leave the EU. Business figures are split, but assure the public that they are committed to investing in Britain whatever the result of the referendum. ## SPLIT 2:

[The next two questions were asked to a random half of the sample; n=2121]

Imagine that David Cameron is unable to secure a good deal in his renegotiations and that many senior political figures back calls for Britain to leave the EU. Business figures are split, but assure the public that they are committed to investing in Britain whatever the result of the referendum. Other European Union leaders say they would respect Britain's decision if we voted to leave, and would be willing to negotiate an alternative trade deal.

How would you then vote on the day of the referendum?

Would vote to stay	32	24	46	47	4	35	29	39	38	28	28	36	26	32	32	28	31	44

Imagine that David Cameron manages to sign a good deal in his renegotiations and that he and the leaders of all the main parties recommend that Britain votes to remain in the EU. Most business leaders back Britain staying, and several large employers announce plans to move operations to mainland Europe should Britain vote to leave. The European Union itself makes clear it would like Britain to stay, and there would be no option of the free trade deal if Britain did leave the EU.

How would you then vote on the day of the referendum?

And, taking all of the issues discussed in this survey into account, how do you think you actually will end up voting in the referendum on Britain's membership of the European Union:

Should the United Kingdom remain a member of the European Union or leave the European Union?
