This week fourteen refugees under the age of 18 who already had family here in Britain were allowed to come to Britain from the migrant camp in Calais.

Do you think it was right or wrong to allow these children to come to Britain?

Some people have suggested that child migrants arriving from Calais to the UK should undergo dental checks to verify their ages while others suggest that this would be an inaccurate and inappropriate method to assess a child's age.

Do you think child migrants arriving from Calais to the UK should, or should not, undergo dental checks to verify whether they are under or over the age of 18?
