12. New social media political ad rules

Several social media companies (eg. Facebook and Twitter) have adopted stronger rules for displaying political advertising on their platforms. Some people say this is a good thing because it works to prevent interference in elections from foreign adversaries. Other people say this is a bad thing because the new rules make it harder for legitimate candidates and political advocates to campaign. Do you think it is a good thing or a bad thing that social media companies have adopted stronger rules for displaying political advertising?
