

Are you our new

Research Executive in the Omnibus team?

.....

This is no ordinary Omnibus department. You can expect to be working with the most diverse product range of any Omnibus operation in the world. Aside from what you'd normally expect, the team conducts research in over 60 markets across the globe, works with over 500 clients each year (across pretty much every sector) and has a truly diverse product offering. You'll be involved in B2B, targeted sample fast turnaround services and children's research, to name just a few areas.

What will I be doing?

We are looking for our next Omnibus Research Executive. You will be in a highly supportive, hard-working and innovative team, and will have the chance to work with clients from almost every conceivable sector, running fast-paced topical research projects. You will receive training throughout your first few months as you start to take on your own projects, and will become responsible for delivering high-quality research projects that help our clients to be their very best.

As well as nationwide consumer research, you will also be trained on and then responsible for running B2B, Youth, International, Regional and also highly targeted projects, equipping you with a real breadth of experience and variety. Opportunities to get out to meet prestigious, successful and innovative clients are certainly there, and someone who is excited by the prospect of doing this whilst having an excellent grasp of research best practice should thrive in the role.

What do I need to bring with me?

You will already have some research experience. If you are a researcher who's got the basics of quantitative market research and is now ready to let those skills flourish in an ever-changing, commercially successful environment, then this could be the role for you. We will provide an environment to enable you to manage multiple research projects of your own from start-to-finish. Excellent written-English, good communication skills, an eye for detail and a highly personable nature are all crucial to the role.
